Entering New-Ulm

Picture Description[1)]

A black and white street view with buildings, trees, and a lamp post.

Analysis[1)]
