Dark Corn II

Picture Description¹⁾

A monochrome, high-angle shot depicts a field of wheat, densely packed and extending into the distance.

Analysis¹⁾

This black and white photograph captures a dense field of wheat, its texture rich and deeply etched by the shadows. The composition is an all-over field, with the intricate details of each wheat stalk dominating the frame. The high contrast emphasizes the tonal variations, creating a visually striking and somewhat dramatic landscape. The overall impression is one of a vast, textured surface, suggesting both abundance and the stark beauty of nature.
