Wings and the Tram

Picture Description¹⁾

Two white birds, one flying and one perched on a wire, against a bright background.

Analysis¹⁾

This minimalist composition captures two gulls against a stark white backdrop, emphasizing their forms and interaction. On the left, a gull is suspended mid-flight, wings extended in a graceful arc as it descends. Its red feet dangle slightly, indicating an imminent landing. To the right, a second gull perches on a thin, subtly colored wire, observing its approaching companion. The image's stark simplicity draws the viewer's attention to the gulls' delicate features and the dynamic moment of their aerial encounter.
