Sleet I

Picture Description¹⁾

An abstract pattern of purple and green spots fades from a dense concentration to a sparse scattering against a white background.

Analysis¹⁾

This abstract piece evokes a sense of organic growth and decay. A field of clustered, cell-like ice shapes, rendered in soft purples, blues, and greens, gradually encroaches upon a stark, white background. The transition from sparse to dense aggregation creates a dynamic tension, suggesting a process of expansion or erosion. The delicate color palette and textural variations lend the work a subtle, almost ethereal quality.
